

Director: Laurence Brahm

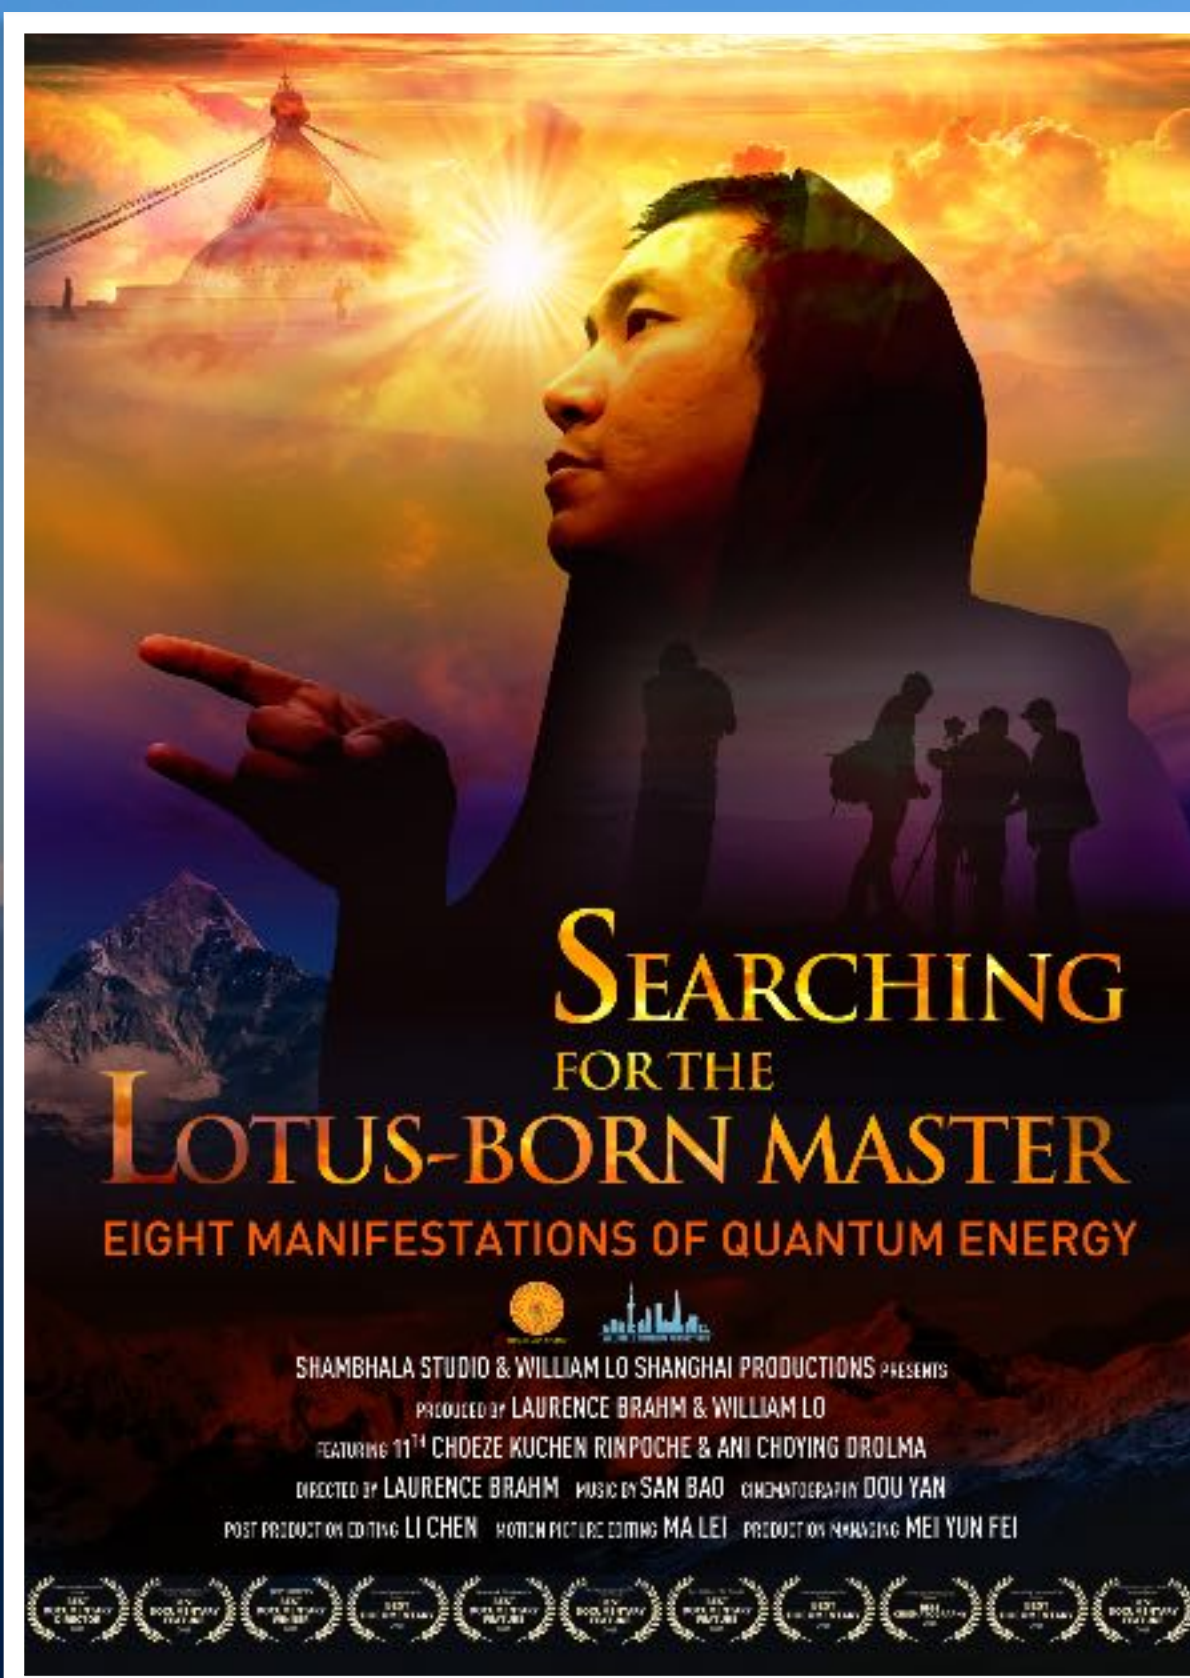

Laurence J. Brahm is a Himalayan explorer, film director, producer and founder of Shambhala Studio, a media group specializing in Himalayan extreme expeditions and Kung Fu films. “Searching for Kung Fu” was selected as the top ten documentary films in the Beijing International Film Festival in 2021. From 2017 to present he has been directing and producing an award winning series of films on the life of the Lotus-Born Master, the Eighth Century founder of Tibetan Buddhism. These expeditions have crossed some of the most remote regions of the Himalayas and inquire into the relationship between ancient Asian philosophy and quantum physics. His “Searching for Shangri-la” film received the National Geographic Air and Water Conservation Award for raising environmental awareness in China, for which he was elected a Fellow International of the Explorer’s Club in 2015. He has authored over thirty books, most about China, and in 2021 received the Special Book Award of China.

Brahm is also an environmental lawyer and social entrepreneur. He received the China Government Friendship Award on the 70th anniversary of the People’s Republic of China in 2019. In 2016 he received China’s Social Responsibility Award for his work on environment between 2013-2015, when he served as Senior Advisor to China’s Ministry of Environmental Protection leading the drafting work of “Ecological Civilization,” China’s “green print” for renewable energy and water conservation. He also served as advisor to Bhutan’s National Environmental Commission. In 2015 Iceland’s President Olafur Ragnar Grimsson invited him to serve on the Himalaya – Third Pole Circle, a panel forming policy responses to glacial melt caused by climate change. In 2012 as NGO spokesperson to the United Nations Earth Summit 2012 (Rio+20), he was selected by ScenaRio as one of the “100 Opinion Leaders Advising Rio+20”. In 2010 he received the UNDP Award for Bio-Diversity and Cultural Protection in China presented by Jane Goodall.

Journey to SHAMBHALA
Feb 28 2023

20 Years ago Laurence Brahm abruptly ended his career as an investment financial lawyer, became an explorer and documentary film director searching for the mythical realm of SHAMBHALA and following the footsteps of the Lotus-Born Master.

Most people thought this was crazy. 20 years later having received over 30 International Film Festival Awards, he is sharing the knowledge of the Himalayas decrypted from the Shambhala access code and the realization that the Lotus-Born Master may be the father of Quantum Physics.
